A cryptocurrency is a virtual currency that operates as a decentralized medium of exchange within a computer network, utilizing encryption algorithms to secure transactions. Unlike traditional currencies, cryptocurrencies do not rely on any central authority, such as a government or bank, for regulation or maintenance.

CRYPTO CURRENCIES

Decentralization

Decentralization is a fundamental aspect of cryptocurrencies, where control and validation of transactions are distributed across a network of nodes. It eliminates the need for a central authority, providing security, transparency, and resilience. This distributed approach empowers users, reduces intermediaries, and fosters a more inclusive and democratic financial system.

BLOCK CHAIN

Block chain is a decentralized and distributed digital ledger technology that allows data to be stored and shared across a network of computers in a secure, transparent, and tamper-resistant manner. This technology ensures the integrity of the digital currency system, allows users to verify transactions without a central authority, and prevents double-spending.

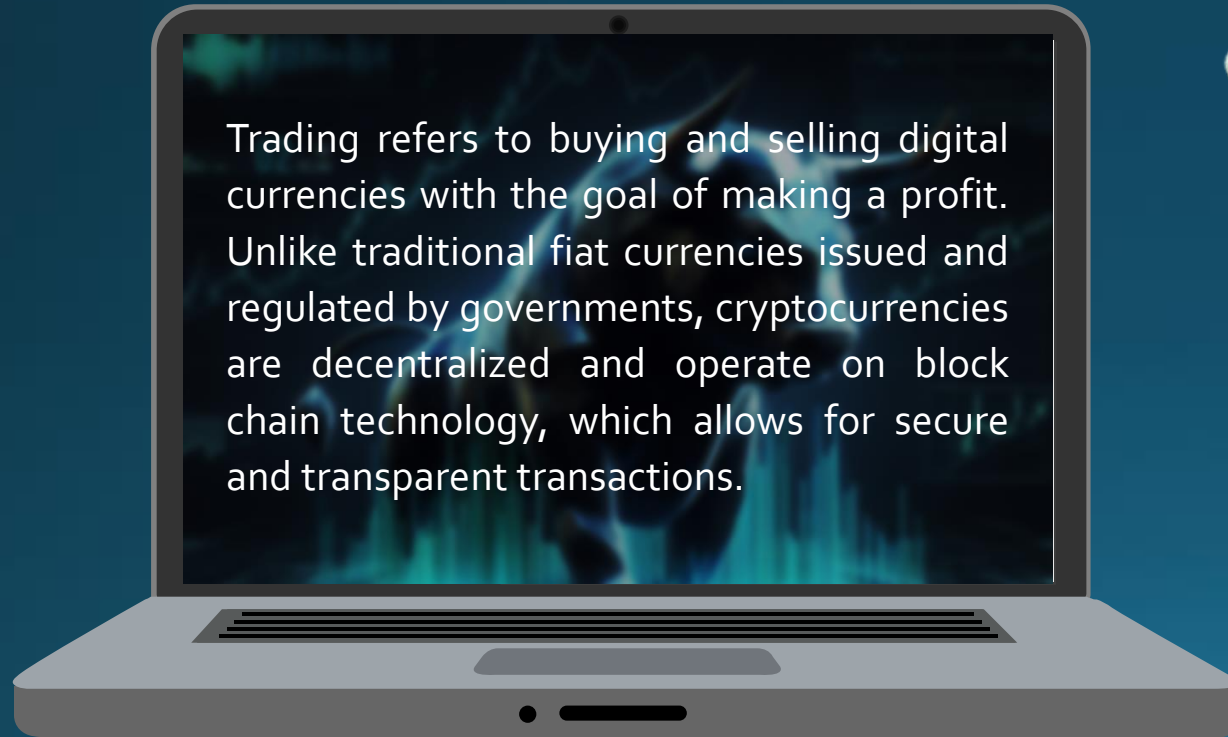

What is forex?

Forex refers to the global decentralized market where currencies are bought and sold. In forex trading, people try to guess if one currency will become more valuable compared to another currency. For instance, a trader might buy a currency pair like EUR/USD, thinking that the euro will increase in value against the U.S. dollar. If they're right and the euro gets stronger, they can sell the currency pair to make money.

What is TRADING?

Trading refers to buying and selling digital currencies with the goal of making a profit. Unlike traditional fiat currencies issued and regulated by governments, cryptocurrencies are decentralized and operate on block chain technology, which allows for secure and transparent transactions.

What is Forex Trading?

Quite simply, forex trading is the act of buying and selling currencies. This is the world's largest financial market with a daily turnover of $5 trillion and it involves many people – and many currencies. Because you are always buying one currency using another currency, you trade 'currency pairs'.

USDT (TETHER)

USDT TETHER

Tether (USDT) is a block chain based stable coin pegged to USD $1.00. Its circulating tokens are backed by an equivalent amount of U.S. dollars, held in a designated bank account. Developed by the crypto exchange Fast World, Tether (USDT) under the USDT symbol. As of October 2021, USDT is the fifth-largest cryptocurrency with a market capitalization exceeding $68 billion.

TRON

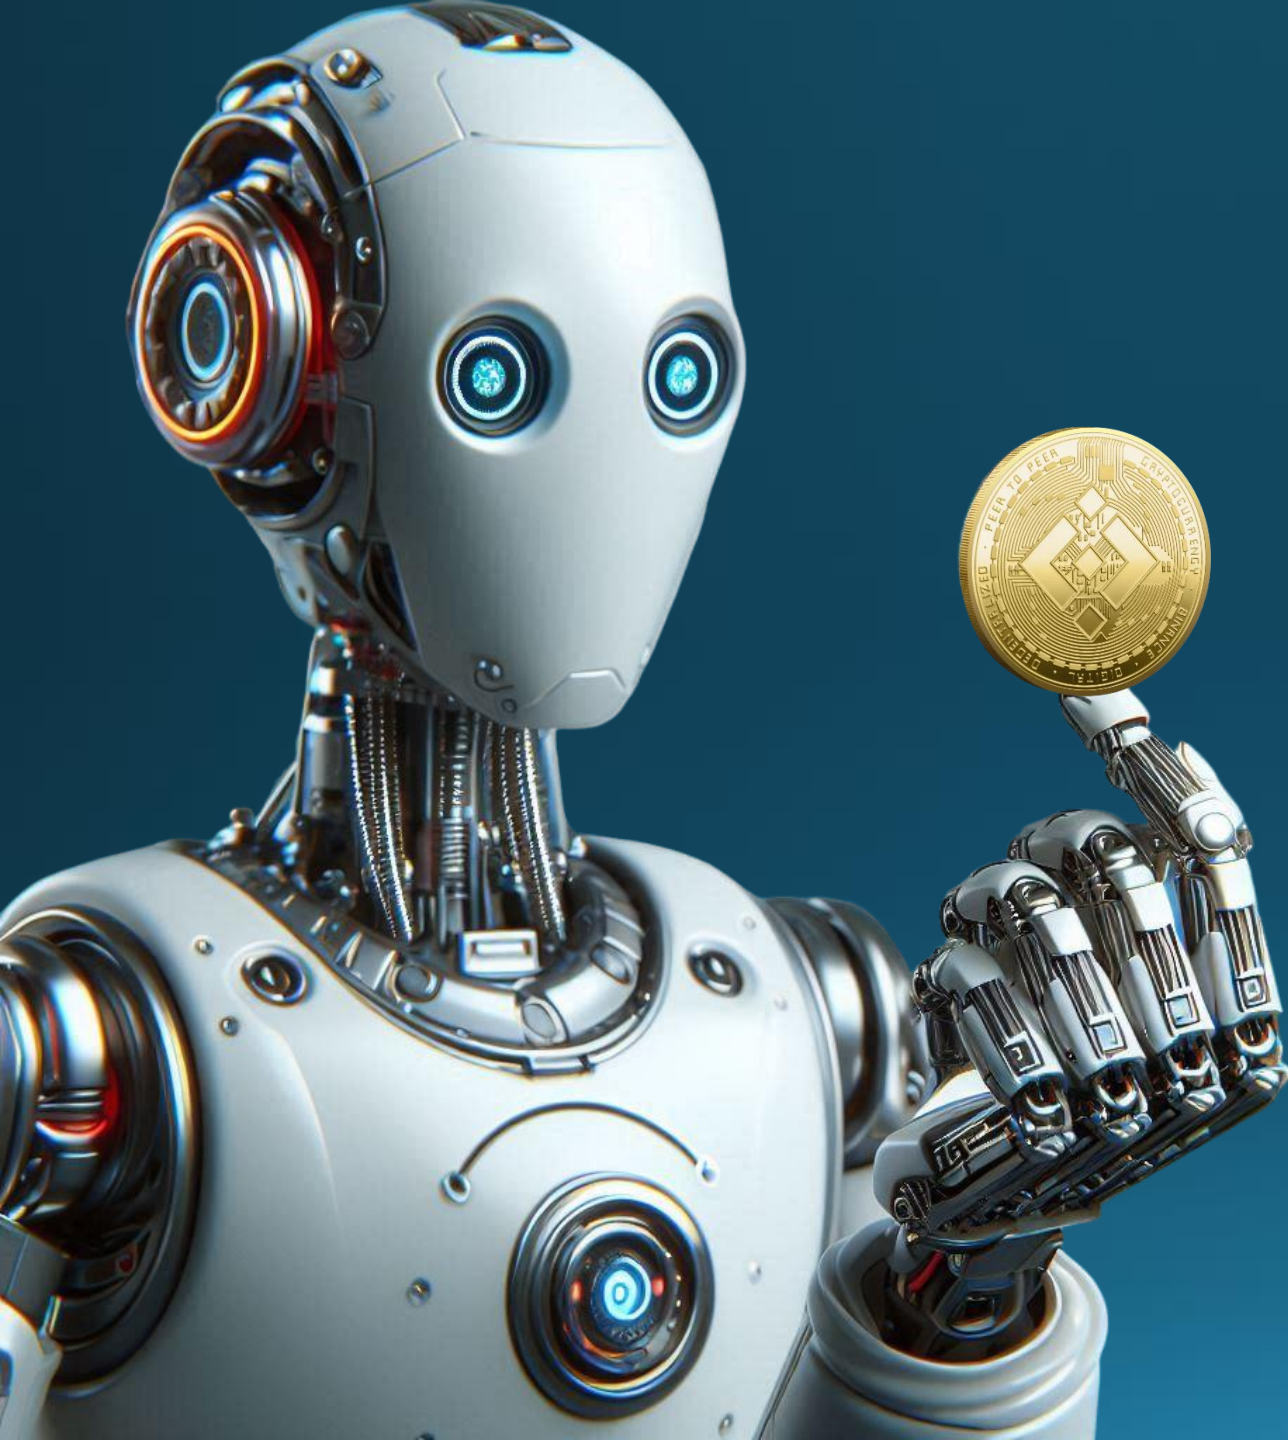

The Tron (TRX) token is a cryptocurrency developed on the TRON protocol, similar to ETH on Ethereum block chain. Iron serves as a medium for credit sharing, payments, and storage. Founded by Justin Sun in 2017, Iron has gained significant popularity. Currently, Tron (TRX) boasts a market capitalization of $3.4 billion, ranking it among the top crypto assets in the market.

BINANCE

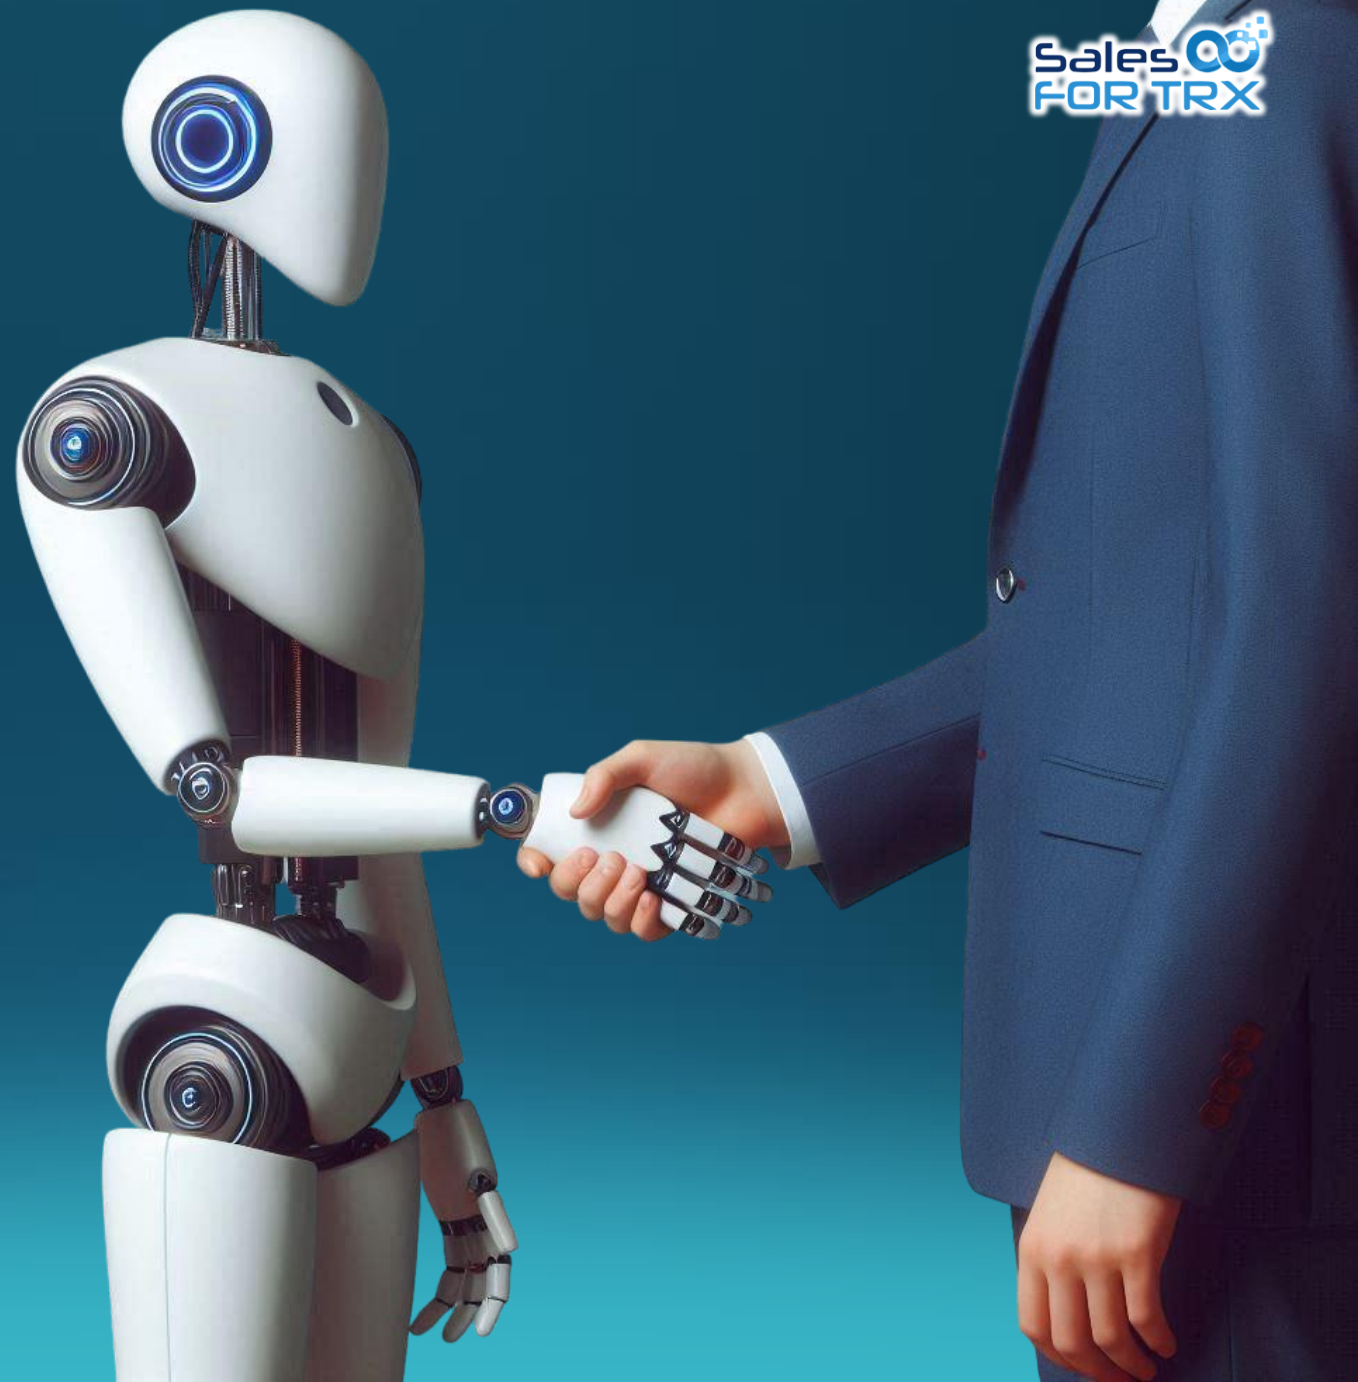

Binance is a global cryptocurrency exchange that operates in numerous countries worldwide. It is renowned for being the largest Bitcoin and altcoin exchange based on trading volume. Established in 2017 by Changpeng Zhao, a developer experienced in high-frequency trading software, Binance has grown to become the largest cryptocurrency exchange in terms of daily trading volume.

SMART CONTRACT

Smart contracts, much like cryptocurrencies, are decentralized. They operate based on predetermined code, and once deployed, their execution cannot be altered. The code defining the contract's rules and expiration is stored on the block chain, and all computations are processed by numerous computers distributed globally. This decentralized nature ensures that the smart contract is highly secure, as there is no risk of unauthorized access or hacking attempts that could potentially halt the project.
